Angat's critical water level

El Niño has finally caught up with Angat Dam. Metro Manila's main water source is fast being depleted after months of no rainfall, and is nearing the lowest level of 157.56 meters recorded in 2010.

Angat Dam's declining water level is serious. It supplies 96 percent of the water requirements of the capital region, aside from providing electricity and irrigation to farmlands in nearby provinces. And the solution is nowhere near—the dam will need more storms to dump rain into the reservoir.

Angat Dam's receding water level has already prompted Manila Water Co. Inc. and Maynilad Water Services Inc., Metro Manila's major water concessionaires, to file a "notice of force majeure" to the Metropolitan Waterworks and Sewerage System. This simply means the concessionaires could not be blamed for not fulfilling their contractual obligations to the MWSS because of factors beyond their control—in this case Angat Dam's dwindling water stock.

Angat Dam's receding water level has already prompted Manila Water Co. Inc. and Maynilad Water Services Inc., Metro Manila's major water concessionaires, to file a "notice of force majeure" to the Metropolitan Waterworks and Sewerage System. This simply means the concessionaires could not be blamed for not fulfilling their contractual obligations to the MWSS because of factors beyond their control—in this case Angat Dam's dwindling water stock.

The Philippine Atmospheric, Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration says Angat Dam will need over 300 millimeters of rainfall to normalize its water level. Pagasa hydrologist Sonia Serrano explains Metro Manila, in comparison, experiences about 140mm of rainfall on average every August.

Water authorities should now stop relying solely on Angat Dam as the major water source of Metro Manila. The effects of El Niño, for one, is expected to affect the Philippines until August. The weather phenomenon will likely persist until the first quarter of 2020 and it is likely that Angat Dam, a multi-purpose facility, will not adequately meet the water requirements of Metro Manila consumers. The dam also generates 246 megawatts of electricity and irrigates about 28,000 hectares of farmland in Bulacan and Pampanga.

The MWSS by now should have identified a new source of raw water after the crisis started in April this year. The Wawa Dam in Rodriguez, Rizal can provide the short-term solution to the water shortage in the metropolis. The MWSS should also go over the other proposals of the private sector in providing the medium- and long-term answers to the current water crisis.

PNP...

The Philippine National Police (PNP) will continue to fulfill its responsibility to eradicate all forms of illegal numbers game in the country.

"The PNP will continue to enforce the law against illegal numbers games, particularly 'jueteng', 'masiao', and 'Last 2' as provided under the law," PNP spokesperson, Col. Bernard Banac, said in a statement Thursday.

Banac was referring to Presidential Decree 1602, as amended by Republic Act 9287.

"We have observed in the past decades that when the PNP went all out against 'jueteng' during its peak, street-level 'jueteng' activities evolved into illegal drugs trade because some displaced 'jueteng' workers had no other alternative source of livelihood, aside from the fact that drug trafficking is more profitable than 'jueteng,'" he said.

Banac noted that the police cannot afford to be remiss in its duty to enforce the law against both illegal gambling and illegal drugs.

He, however, said that the PNP leadership understands why President Rodrigo Duterte wants the police to focus more on illegal drugs.

"We submit to the wisdom of President Rodrigo Roa Duterte in his expression of preference to 'jueteng' than to drug trafficking as a means of livelihood by some people among the poorest sectors of society," he said.

"At the same

time, the PNP will continue to support the regulated numbers game operations of the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office through the Small Town Lottery as a legalized alternative to 'jueteng,'" Banac added.

On Tuesday, Duterte said he would let "jueteng" operations continue for now, tagging it as "lesser evil" compared to illegal drugs.

Illegal gambling, particularly "jueteng" has been a perennial headache of the police due to rampant corruption that comes with their operation.

Several politicians and policemen have been accused in the past of receiving money from "jueteng" operators, either on a weekly or monthly basis. (PNA)

Bill to develop Islamic banking in PH co-sponsored

Senator Win Gatchalian has thrown his support behind the establishment of a sound legal and regulatory framework for the development of Islamic banks in the country.

Together with outgoing Senator Chiz Escudero, Gatchalian has co-sponsored Senate Bill No. 2231, or An Act Providing For The Regulation and The Organization of Islamic Banks.

Gatchalian chairs the Senate Committee on Economic Affairs, while Escudero heads the Senate Committee on Banks, Financial Institutions, and Currencies.

The former Valenzuela City mayor and congressman said the measure will pave the way for the creation of a framework that will allow Filipino Muslim entrepreneurs, especially those involved in micro, small, and medium enterprises, to effectively access responsive banking and financial services that are compliant with the principles of Shari'ah or Islamic law. This will enable the country to tap into the growing pool of Islamic investors across the Middle East and South-east Asia, he said.

Even more important, the proposed measure will complement the Bangsamoro Organic Law, which mandates the Bangsamoro Government to promote the development of an Islamic banking and finance system in the country, according to Gatchalian.

"This proposed measure seeks to establish the legal and regulatory framework that will make Islamic finance in the country more viable and mainstream," Gatchalian said. "Industry and technical concerns will be addressed by the salient provisions of the bill."

"This bill also presents an opportunity to tap international financial markets for both resource mobilization and investment diversification through Sukuk and equity markets," he added. "The Islamic finance industry has expanded rapidly over the past decade, growing at 10-12% annually."

Under SBN 2231, the Monetary Board of the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP) is tasked with authorizing the establishment of Islamic banks. It can also allow conventional banks to engage in Islamic banking arrangements through a designated Islamic banking unit within the bank, provided that the Islamic banking unit is separate from its conventional banking transactions.

The bill also mandates the BSP to formulate regulations for the development of Islamic banking in the country.

At present, the Al-Amanah Islamic Investment Bank of the Philippines (AAIIBP), created through R.A. 6848 or the Charter of the Al-Amanah Islamic Bank of the Philippines of 1990, is the only bank in the Philippines authorized to offer Islamic banking services.

The AAIIBP has eight branches in Mindanao, namely Zamboanga, Jolo, Cagayan de Oro, Iligan, Marawi, Davao, General Santos, and Cotabato. The bank's Executive Office is located in Makati.

To ensure compliance with Shari'ah principles, the bill mandates Islamic banks to constitute a Shari'ah Advisory Council, composed of persons qualified in Shari'ah law or who have knowledge or experience in Shari'ah law and banking, finance, law, or other related disciplines.

Restaurant owner apologizes to DOF for irresponsible social

The president of a restaurant chain has apologized to Finance Secretary Carlos Dominguez III for a recent post on social media that attributed the price increase of its food products to last year's temporary inflation spike and insinuated that the government was to blame for it.

Eduardo Firmalo, the president of Frankie's New York Buffalo Wings, said the company fully understands that it must be responsible for whatever comes out of its social media channels and assured Dominguez "that we have taken measures to avoid any similar incidents from happening again."

Firmalo was referring to Frankie's New York Buffalo Wings' tweet last Jan. 14, which has since been deleted. The tweet was in response to a complaint about the price increase of its products sent to its Twitter account.

Frankie's has publicly apologized for the tweet, which wrongly attributed the price increase to the temporary elevated inflation rate last year. It clarified through its Twitter account that the price increase was the result of "many internal and external factors."

"We would like to express once more that the tweet was unintentional and was not approved by management. Upon seeing the tweet, we immediately asked our Social Media Specialist to remove the post because it did not reflect the views of management," Firmalo said in his letter to Dominguez dated June 6. Firmalo also said in his June 6 letter that "we recognize our government's efforts to provide a better economic environment for the country and are fully supportive of its programs."

"Once again, on behalf of our entire organization, we humbly and sincerely apologize for any misconception that the tweet made," the letter read.

Firmalo explained in his letter that the tweet was posted by their social media specialist, who had been with the company for only two months and failed to coordinate with management on how to properly respond to the complaint.

"Disciplinary action was meted out to the said employee and he has since been terminated from our employment. We have also sent out an internal memo to all our employees to be more responsible with the use of our brand's name," Firmalo said.

The inflation rate, which rose to 4.3 percent in March 2018 and reached 6.7 percent in September, began declining in November last year following the implementation by President Duterte of an array of several directives to check price spikes.

Inflation went down to 3.8 percent in February this year and continued its downward trend in March at 3.3 percent, 3.0 percent in April 2019 and 3.2 percent in May, well within this year's official inflation target of between 2 and 4 percent.

GO NEGOSYO, DTI MENTORED ENTREPRENEURS IN ILOILO

"Most probinsyanos have so many disadvantages in so many things. So, normally the next thing you'll do is to work harder because you have to compensate for the things that you're not familiar with, the things that you don't know much about. So I think that's one trait that if you have so much disadvantage stuck on you, against you, you'll tend to exert more effort. If you recognized that, then it will become your advantage."

Double Dragon President and CEO and Founder of Mang Inasal Edgar "Injap" Sia II inspired his kababayans through his message in the 19th rollout of Go Negosyo's Mentor Me On Wheels at the Northpoint Event Center, SM City Iloilo last June 21, 2019.

In his message, he added: "You can start small and if you plan properly and you work hard to execute your plans, it's still possible for you to grow to a certain size and successfully compete in a nationwide scale just like how we did our business. So I think, to all of my kababayans, you just have to really carefully study whatever you want to achieve and then once you've studied the industry, the terrain, you have to execute passionately, and to really work hard. It's not optional for you to have some sacrifices, that's your contribution to be able to reach your goal to grow the business. For me, it is the inspiration that it's possible for a probinsyano, like me, to start small and grow."

Go Negosyo in partnership with the Department of Trade and Industry (DTI) and through the help of Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises Development Council (MSMED) brought the free mentorship to the City of Love which catered more than 400 and was mentored by 50 mentors.

MMOW program was led by Jerry Clavecillas, Director of Bureau of Small Medium Enterprise Development - DTI and was joined by Rebecca M. Rascon, Regional Director of DTI- Region 6, Maria Corazon Bulatao, President and CEO of Quad X, Rey Lapid, President & Founder of R. Lapid's Chicharon & Barbecue, RJ Ledesma, Co-Founder of Mercato Centrale Philippines, and many more mentors!

Aside from MMOW, Go Negosyo also conducted its second rollout of MME in Region 6. Together with DTI, Bureau of Small and Medium Enterprise Development (BSMED), MSMED Council and esteemed partners who joined forces with the aim to supplement graduates of KMME and KAMMP and link them to financial institutions and market platforms.

MME featured three forums on Money, Market, and Digital. Business matching and business consulta-

Made to last: from trash to durable eco-friendly bags. Elena Mabano (rightmost), a microfinance client of CARD Bank from Toril, Davao City is into businesses that protects and preserves the environment. She makes bags from used tarpaulin and clothes for more than five years. She was inspired to use tarpaulin in making her bags because she observed that many banners and streamers are along the streets, in electric posts, and other places. She thought that these materials can be turned into bags that are durable and can be used for a lifetime. So in 2014, she availed a microfinance loan in CARD Bank, Inc. to finance her new and unique line of business. Elena now successfully made her business bigger and displayed her crafts at the Pasalubong Center in Davao City. Now, she trains communities, especially students, so they can benefit from her enterprise and learn from her experience. Elena, like Raquel Lanaban (leftmost) who is into paper wallet making, was also tapped by CARD MRI Hijos Tours so that their products become integrated into its tour programs. CARD Bank and CARD MRI Hijos Tours are among the 21 member institutions under CARD Mutually Reinforcing Institutions (CARD MRI), a group of social development institutions that is in the business of ending poverty in the Philippines through microfinance and community development programs.
