EDITORIAL: No time for tokens

The world commemorated World Environment Day Wednesday. It's a campaign to raise awareness on various environmental issues that confront the globe today.

Since 1974, when it was first observed, WED has touched on numerous environmental issues—marine and air pollution, overpopulation, global warming, sustainable consumption, small-island population, wildlife crime. In recent days, more issues have emerged: the fate of small-island nations and others most vulnerable to climate change, new-normal weather patterns, the lasting consequences of single-use plastics, conservation of imperiled species, and the struggle to move away from coal as a “cheap” source of energy and toward renewable ones.

Governments, corporations, non-government organizations, academic institutions and community groups from as many as 143 countries have participated in such events. Here at home, Proclamation No. 237, issued in 1988, declared the month of June as Philippine Environment Month.

Events scheduled by various groups are meant to raise the people's awareness of issues and make them develop habits and take concrete steps toward doing their bit for the environment.

Then again, we don't really have to be reminded by calendar activities about how important it is, first to be aware, and more importantly to take action in one's sphere to achieve specific goals.

For instance, recent news about other countries' trash making their way to the Philippines have made us indignant at both the senseless and insulting act. Indignant social media users made their opinions known, and eventually the government shipped back the containers of waste that had been sitting on a landfill for several years.

Portrayals of the effects of using plastic containers have also stirred awareness and action, even as the consequences have yet to be realized. Who would not take note of one foot of plastics covering the entire Metro Manila, or dead sea animals turning up ashore with plastic in their bellies? Yet these are the consequences of the things we have been used to doing throughout our lifetime. We have also heard about young people walking out of their classrooms to demand action from their local government to do something about mitigating climate change. Indeed, no matter the global pacts or articulated national policy, everything happens—or doesn't happen—at the local and community levels. It is also at these levels that the stories are more compelling, more real.

In the end, commemorations such as the World Environment Day serve their purpose, but it is up to the people to consume the accurate information that they should act upon. In the end, all boils down to the age-old dilemma of balancing today's needs while leaving some for the future generations, not just of people but earth-dwellers.

It's a global calendar day, certainly. But WED is also a deeply personal reminder to every individual about how in the earth's very long timeline, we are all specks, and we must tread respectfully as we pass.

Non-passage of new sin taxes to make UHC 'a third-class' law

The Universal Health Care (UHC) Act will be downgraded from being a first-class law to a third-rate one, with its implementation either failing to equitably serve all Filipinos or its benefits severely limited, if the outgoing Congress is unsuccessful in passing legislation that will substantially raise the current excise tax rates on “sin” products, Department of Finance (DOF) Undersecretary Karl Kendrick Chua has said.

Chua said excise taxes on sin products such as cigarettes and alcoholic drinks need to be increased to levels that would help fill the P62-billion funding shortfall in the first year of implementation alone of the UHC program in 2020.

If Congress fails to pass a law mandating these sin tax increases, then the UHC program will be an ineffective tool in achieving the Duterte administration's goal of ensuring equitable access to quality and affordable health care services for all Filipinos.

“These are the possible scenarios: the program will not be able to serve all Filipinos, which means some would get better health benefits, while others would not. Or, to be fair to all, everyone will be covered but the quality of service will be severely affected,” said Chua in a recent interview.

Chua issued the statement as he reiterated the joint call of the DOF and Department of Health (DOH) as well as appeals by various health advocacy groups and civic organizations, for the outgoing Congress to pass a new sin tax reform law to help fill the massive funding gap for UHC.

With only one session week left in the current Congress, the Senate, where the sin tax reform bill is pending, needs to act soon in passing the measure.

Senate Bill (SB) No. 2233, which was certified as urgent by President Duterte, provides for a P45 excise tax increase per pack on tobacco products in 2020, followed by a series of P5 hikes until the rate reaches P60 in 2023, and an annual 5 percent increase thereafter. The DOF said this phased increase is acceptable.

According to Chua, Speaker Gloria Macapagal Arroyo has committed the House of Representatives' adoption of the Senate version to ensure the approval of the measure in the current Congress without the need for both chambers to first go through bicameral conference committee (bicam) negotiations.

If the current Congress gets to pass the law before it adjourns this month, Chua said that PhilHealth coverage for primary care will expand to cover 120 drugs and there will be no limit on primary care treatment conditions.

Barangay health care facilities will also be expanded and will be better equipped to render primary health care, he said.

But without a new sin tax reform law to cover the funding shortfall for UHC in 2020, Chua said that to get the program going in the first year, the government might just be able to cover only half of the 120 drugs, choose a few medical conditions to expand the seven currently covered by PhilHealth and patients will continue to shell out up to 90 percent of their money for their medicine expenses instead of just paying a fixed fee.

Finance Secretary Carlos Dominguez III has pointed out that from 2020 to 2024, all current sources of government funding can cover UHC at around P200 billion annually, while the cost of the program will start at P257 billion in 2020 and grow at an average of around P11 billion to P12 billion per year, amounting to a five-year total of around P1.44 trillion by 2024.

Without substantially adjusting the current sin tax rates, Dominguez said the cumulative funding gap by 2024 will reach P426 billion.

For 2020, the government can cover the cost of the UHC program from its current funding sources from the national budget, the Philippine Amusement and Gaming Corp. (PAGCOR) and the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office (PCSO) in the amount of P195 billion. Without sin tax reform, UHC will be left with a funding shortfall of around P62 billion.

The rise in incomes and slower increases in sin taxes over the past few years have made cigarettes and alcoholic drinks increasingly affordable to the average Filipino, which, in turn, has increased anew the number of smokers, especially among the youth, and made binge drinking more prevalent.

Raising tobacco taxes in 2012 succeeded in reducing smoking prevalence from 29 percent during that year to 22.7 percent in 2015. However, smoking has gradually been on the rise, reaching 23 percent in 2018, eroding the deterrent effects of the 2012 “sin” tax law.

Imus to hold cremation rites for worn-out PH flags

IMUS CITY, Cavite - This city, tagged as ‘Flag Capital of the Philippines’, will conduct cremation rites for the first time for worn-out national flags on June 11, a day before the country observes its 121st Independence Day.

Thousands of old, damaged or faded national flags stored by the locality for over a decade will be burned during “Huling Parangal sa Watawat ng Pilipinas (Final Honor for the Philippine Flag) at the city's Heritage Park in Barangay Alapan 2-B.

City Information Officer Jay

Saquilayan said worn-out flags should not be thrown away but should be formally burned to avoid misuse, as well as to give importance to the national flag.

The ashes of the burned flags will be placed in an urn and buried in a flag grave in the area while a patriotic song will be sung.

“The city government, tagged as Flag Capital of the Philippines, is planning to hold the rites yearly starting this year in accordance with the Flag and Heraldic Code of the Philippines,” Saquilayan said. (PNA)

NI Nelson Dimapilis

The Joint Congressional Power Commission (JCPC) has greenlit the amendments to the implementing rules and regulations (IRR) of the Electric Power Industry Reform Act Law (EPIRA) in order for communities to feel the benefits of hosting power generation facilities as quickly as possible.

During the last JCPC hearing for the 17th Congress, both panels of the Senate and House of Representative approved Department of Energy Circulars 2018-03-005 and 2018-08-0021 that aim to include indigenous cultural communities and indigenous peoples in the list of host communities, and fast track the release and use of the funds to host communities, respectively.

JCPC co-chair Senator Win Gatchalian stressed the need to amend the IRR concerning benefits to host communities of the EPIRA Law to empower and to speedily give host communities the benefits mandated by law, but also to promote harmony and cooperation among the LGUs, residents, and generation companies or energy-resource developers.

"As we speak right now, the total fund for benefits for host communities in the entire country is P12 billion. As of August of last year, only P6 billion has either been utilized or allocated for use because of red tape," the lawmaker said during the hearing.

Gatchalian said the fund can be used for rural electrification, development and livelihood, and rehabilitation of watershed management, health, and environmental enhancement projects.

However, Gatchalian pointed out that these funds take years to trickle down to host communities because of the current procedure in the EPIRA IRR. Under the present setup, generation companies will remit the funds to the DOE, which in turn will release the fund to host communities that will implement the projects subject to submission of various documentary requirements.

The lawmaker said Department Circular (DC) 2018-08-0021 removes DOE from the picture and allows the generation companies to directly remit the funds to the host communities. On the other hand, DC 2018-03-005 expands the benefits to indigenous cultural communities and indigenous peoples who were previously not included as beneficiaries.

Gatchalian believes that these twin department circulars will eliminate the prevailing red tape that complicates the process of giving the funds to the host communities.

"On behalf of the Senate, after reviewing thoroughly the proposals of the Department of Energy, we definitely want to empower and to give the benefits as quickly as possible to the LGUs," the senator said.

The House of Representatives also joined the senate in its approval of the said request of the DOE.

Cavite ...

IMUS CITY, Cavite -- The month of June maybe considered as Cavite's history and heritage month where three significant events are staged, which beckon both local and foreign tourists the chance to re-discover why Cavite is known as the "Historical Capital of the Philippines".

Thousands of Caviteños, including those from Metro Manila, are expected to flock to Kawit town on June 12 for the 121st celebration of the declaration of Philippine Independence.

The late General Emilio Aguinaldo, first President of the Philippine Republic, proclaimed in Kawit town the country's sovereignty and independence from Spanish colonization on June 12, 1898 before a huge crowd at his mansion, now known as the historic Aguinaldo Shrine – a National Shrine of the Philippines.

A national event and one of the country's regular holidays, this event commemorates that momentous occasion when the Philippine National Flag, sewn in Hong Kong by Marcela Agoncillo, was officially hoisted and the Philippine National March was played to the public for the first time.

The National Historical Commission of the Philippines (NHCP), in partnership with the provincial government of Cavite, the municipal government of Kawit, and their respective tourism offices, have lined up day-long activities composed of commemoration formalities and some side activities.

The fun in the province continues with Cavite City's annual "Regada" Festival from June 15 to 22 where people of different ages and social status join in the fun not only because of its festive mood, but also of the ecological implication and spiritual bonding that they experience.

The city's Regada Water Festival, which started in 1996 and now an annual revelry, coincides with the feast of St. John the Baptist; and is marked with street dancing and parade, fun games, highlighted with the splashing of water everywhere.

Bacoor City, the "Marching Band Capital of the Philippines", will also celebrate its 7th cityhood and have lined-up a series of activities which include the "Grandest Marching Band Parade (from Bacoor Elementary School to Niog St) and Show Competition (Strike Revilla Gymnasium) on June 22.

The province of Cavite is known in history as the home of the country's president of the First Philippine Republic, and where the Philippine Independence from Spanish colonizers was declared.

Cavite's Tourism and Cultural Affairs Office said the province is also a 'centerstage' for numerous revolts, with triumphs and historical events commemorated each year to constantly remind the people, especially the young ones, of "our forefather's gallantry and extreme love for country which led to the country's freedom which we all enjoy today." CaMIA, BotiCARD launch bundled package for CARD Care

Medicine pack from BotiCARD is now included in every CARD Care policy by CARD MRI Insurance Agency (CaMIA). The new product will serve as a bundle package called the BotiCARD Health Plus. It was launched to provide affordable and quality medicines to microfinance clients.

The product is consist of first aid and maintenance medicines such as Ascorbic 500MG tablet, Loperamide 2MG capsule, Paracetamol 500MG tablet, Phenylpropanolamine + Chlorphenamine + Paracetamol, and vitamins for kids like Vitamin B1, B6, B12 tablet.

The vitamins for kids are provided upon the request of the policy holder. Moreover, indications of how to take the medicines are provided in the kit to inform the clients about the use and importance of vitamins for a healthy body.

"The BotiCARD Health Plus hopes to teach the microfinance clients to always have a medicine kit at home and taking vitamins must be practiced in order to attain good health," said Rosenda P. Aquino, president and chair of BotiCARD.

The bundle package of CARD Care product of CaMIA and BotiCARD Health Plus is offered at P500 valid for one year.

The bundled product was first launched in Batangas, Cavite, Laguna, Masbate, National Capital Region (NCR), Oriental Mindoro, Quezon, Rizal, and Tacloban City. "Our clients are very affirmative. It is our goal to roll out this new product nationwide this year," Aquino shared.

With the collaboration, CaMIA President Vener S. Abellera, said this will enable both the institutions to deliver innovative and better services to the communities they serve.

"We want to break the idea that insurance is expensive and for the well-off families only. Our goal at CaMIA is to provide our clients with affordable microinsurance products because all of us need to be secured in times of uncertainties," added Abellera.

CARD Care is an insurance product that provides hospital income benefit to replace loss of income when a policy holder is hospitalized. It covers Daily Sickness Hospital Benefit (DSHB) and Daily Accident Hospital Benefit (DAHB) amounting to P200 per day, which is maximum of 15 days per year for the combined DSHB and DAHB. It also has additional coverage of P5,000 for personal accident.

CaMIA and BotiCARD are member institutions of CARD Mutually Reinforcing Institutions (CARD) that aims to eradicate poverty through healthcare and microinsurance access.
